

THE HOTLIST: 29 FEBRUARY – 6 MARCH

THE RESTAURANT

Street food has been de rigueur of late, but Masala Zone has been serving up road-side and home-cooked favourites for over a decade. Part of the group who own Chutney Mary, the Michelin-starred Amaya, and Britain's oldest Indian restaurant Veeraswamy, the Marshall Street branch in Soho has relaunched with a menu that is strong on thalis (a platter consisting of different daily flavours including dal, raita, curries). We recommend starting the evening with Lucknowi Fizz - bubbles with a kick of vodka, and flavours of lychee and screwpine, before sampling dishes of crisp, plump prawns and the Coondapur ghee roast duck. Visit masalazone.com. Helena Lee